Blacking the Stove.

Coffee is used for miving blacking for the stove, in order to make it stick closer and last longer. Most housekeepers prefer the old-fashioned blacking to any of the cements, because of its lasting qualities. The cement is easier to apply, as it requires no labor in polishing. No stove should be blacked more than once a month, but it should be kept clean by instantly wiping off any clots of grease which may be spilled upon it. The flues of a stove should certainly be cleaned as often as once a month.

VACRANT VERSES. Eyes and Lips. Wheresoever she may go, Quick the path before her narrows; For her tips are Cupid's tow An I her eyes are Cupid's arrows.

Foolish you'le, that jostle, atrive, Like a crows of hungry sparrous Pause! He giad you're still alive! For her eyes are Cupid's arrows. My poor hears, also could show By each wound that burts and harrow How she uses Cupid's how And disposes of his arrows.

Swains, beware! The first you know, You'll be toted home in barrows; Too Kittenish, I used to dote on Kitty,
All day long I sang her praise;
She was so cute and precity,
And had such kittenish ways.

But oh! I wish that Kitty'd From kittenish ways desist. Alas, I'm to be pitted! She's scratched me off her list, Mann Brothers
